LEWIS-POWNALL, b. 1846.

Lineage.—The name of Vaudral, or Vaudrey, is evidently derived from the Vill of Vaudrai, in France, where the Sieurs de Vaudral continued to flourish until the reign of LOUIS XIV. In the 12th century, between the years 1153 and 1181, when Hugh Kevelioc possessed the palatine earldom of Chester,

Lineage.—This family is traditionally of foreign origin. It has been settled in Devonshire and Cornwall for upwards of 300 years (chiefly between Barnstable and Launceston), as evidenced by a large number of wills (commencing 1 ELIZABETH, A.D. 1558), proved in the Probate Courts of London and Exeter. The name is found spelt variously, as VIGORS, VIGURS, VIGURES, VIGUERES, VIGUERS, and VIGOURS. Richard Vigours, son and heir of John Vigours, m. (circa 1500) Alice Marwood, "some of the oldest blood in Devon," and closely allied to the Courtenays and other notable families. The Irish branch (1580) have always spelt the name VIGORS. The first of this branch was

THE REV. LOUIS VIGORS, B.A., who migrated to the south of Ireland at the beginning of the 17th century. He was ordained deacon and priest, at Exeter, by William (Cotton), bishop of that diocese, 5 Nov. 1603. He appears as vicar of Kilfaughnabeg and Kilcoe, co. Cork, in 1615 and 1634; as vicar of Templequinlan, diocese of Ross, 2 Feb. 1616. He was collated to the treasurership of that diocese, 28 March, 1631. He was alive in 1642, and his successor (John Master) was not appointed till 1663. His son, Urban, writing in 1642, says, his father had then "resided in the town of Ross (Rosscarberry) for more than thirty years." He had, it is believed, a younger son, Louis, whose son Richard, b. in Devonshire, in 1680, and educated at Launceston, entered Trin. Coll., Dublin, in 1698 (as appears by the College records), a son,

THE REV. URBAN VIGORS, who (see REV. DR. BRADY'S Parochial Records of the Dioceses of Cork, Ross, &c.) was collated, 5 Sept. 1634, to the rectory of Ardnageehy and vicarage of Grennagh, co. Cork. He was also vicar of Leitrim and Clondullane, diocese of Cloyne, 25 Feb. 1635, also of Magroney, same diocese, and of Marshalstown, Cloyne, 18 Nov. 1637, and subsequently became vicar of Kilworth and Kilcrumpe, co. Cork. In the library of Trin. Coll., Dublin (MSS., F. 3. 11), is an autograph letter, dated 16 July, 1642, from Urbanus Vigors to Henry Jones, dean, and afterwards bishop of Kilmore, giving an account of the rebellion in Munster at that period. Urbanus was at this time chaplain to Lord Brogbill, afterwards Earl of Orrery, and attended him as such during the rebellion. He m. Catherine, dau. of Thomas Boyle, Esq., and sister of Richard Boyle, bishop of Ferns and Leighlin, and of Roger, bishop of Clogher (author of Summa Theologia Christiana, 1681), who was b. 1617, and d. 1687, of the family of the Earl of Cork. She obtained letters of administration to her husband, in 1653, from the Probate Court of Exeter, and was alive in Nov. 1687 (having been left a legacy that year by her brother, Roger), and left issue,

In an old manuscript which was in the possession of the late Canon Newling, of Lichfield, the family is said to be of Saxon origin, and to be derived from Wald (nemus) and cote (tigurium).

WALDIE OF HENDERSYDE.

WALDIE, JOHN, Esq. of Hendersyde Park, co. Roxburgh, D.L., b. 1 May, 1781.

Lineage.—From the want of early records it is impossible to fix the exact period the Waldies first settled in Kelso and its neighbourhood. The name was variously spelt Waitho, Watho, Waltho, and Waldie, and sometimes it occurs in the same document, written in two different ways. The first of the family to be traced in any record is THOMAS WAITHO, who was public and papal notary to the Abbacy of Kelso. JOHN WALTHO (the father of GEORGE WALTHO, living in 1652, who first spelt his name WALDIE) was a considerable proprietor of the Mark lands of Kelso, and the titles show that they had descended to him by succession and not by purchase. His son,

GEORGE WALDIE, acquired other lands to a considerable extent (some of which are still in the family) and got a charter for them and also for those he had inherited from his father, from the Earl of Roxburghe in 1664. He m. Elspeth Muschett (originally Montfichet). The families and

HUBERT-KELLY-JAMES-JOHN-JOHNSTONE b. 14 Oct. 1832.

Lineage.—This name is of English extraction, and was borne in the reign HENRY II., A.D. 1157, by WALTER WALDRON, one of the barons of the time.

SIR RICHARD WALDRON, Knt., the immediate ancestor of the present family, left Dorsetshire and went to Ireland in 1609, settling at the castle of Dromellan, co. Cavan, where King JAMES I had allotted to him an extensive estate in the barony of Loughtee. His son,

THOMAS WALDRON, m Elizabeth, sister of Sir William Reeves, attorney-general for Ireland in the reign of CHARLES I, and had issue,

HENRY WALDRON, who in 1641, was in the list of the "attainted" gentry of Cavan. He was the father of

FRANCIS WALDRON, who left Dromellan Castle about the year 1697, and settled at Cartron, co. Roscommon. He m. Jane, dau. of the Rev. Henry Roycroft, and was father of

FRANCIS WALDRON, who m. 1710, Mary, dau. of Charles Jones, of Ardnarce, co. Sligo, by whom he had issue, Roscommon, and had an only dau., Elizabeth-Barbara, m. Sept. 1816, to Hubert-Kelly Waldron, Esq. Mr. Waldron m. 2ndly, Frances Buck, and had issue, Francis, Arthur, Rebecca, Catherine, Vaughan, and Andrew.

II. Mary, m. to Matthew Nisbett, Esq. of Derrycarn.

The 2nd son,

THOMAS WALDRON, Esq. of Drumsena, co. Leitrim, m. Elizabeth, sister to Mary, wife of Francis Nisbett, of Derrycarn, and dau of Thomas Blakeney, of Albert, co. Galway, and had (with a dau. m. to Thomas Lounds, Esq. of the co. Cavan) a son,

* The Ormstons were a family of long-standing at Kelso, deriving immediately from Robert Ormstowne, merchant, who m. in 1600, Elizabeth Edmonston. The Hendersyde estate was purchased in 1715, from Edmonstone of Edmam, and conveyed, by the marriage of JEAN ORMSTON with JOHN WALDIE, to the family of Waldie.

† A very curious account is given in the Seats of England, vol. i., p. 46, of the manner in which Bishop Hugh de Pudsey obtained the whole village of Garmondsway from Ralph de Garmonsway, lord thereof, promising to defray the whole expenses of the wages of battles in which de Garmonsey had been engaged, and to make him comfortable for the term of his natural life, by allowing him, the said Ralph, sixty-four marks a year—thus obtaining for his whole Zenodochium, at Sherbourne, the whole village of Garmondsway. There is every reason to believe that the unscrupulous prelate brought the impoverished de Garmonsway to Sadberge, his palatinate town, where they appear to have again obtained an estate per Surtees, vol. iii., p. 268, amongst many leading family records—Richard Garmonsway appears to have held three burgages and one oxgang of land, in 1575.

WALLACE OF ASHOLME, KNARESDALE, AND FEATHERSTONE CASTLE.

WALLACE, ALBANY, Esq. late of Queen Anne Street, Cavendish Square, and now of Worthing, Sussex, b. 27 June, 1788; s. to the representation of the family of Wallace of Asholme, Knaresdale, and Featherstone Castle, Northumberland (and also to that of French of Frenchland and Thornidykes, in Scotland), on the demise of his eldest surviving brother, John Wallace Esq., H.E.I.C.'s civil service, 4 Aug. 1846, but their cousin-german, the late Lord Wallace, having placed his own right heirs at the end of the entail, his estates are at present held in trust for the eldest son of the late Hon. James Hope, 2nd son of John, 4th Earl of Hopetoun, the nephew of his lordship's wife, Viscountess Melville.

Lineage.—It appears from Hutchinson's History of Cumberland, published 1794, that this family claims descent from a cadet of Craigie-Wallace, in Ayrshire; and a pedigree of that house states, that many of the posterity of Alexander, 2nd son of John Wallace, of Craigie, who s. about the year 1500, settled upon the Eastern border of England; and there is also a stone in the east wall of St. Mary's porch, in the Church of St. Nicholas, at Newcastle-upon-Tyne, with the arms of the Scottish Wallaces, quartering those of "Lindsay of Craigie." In 1550, Henry Wallace is enrolled in a MS. in the British Museum, as one of the gentlemen inhabiting the Middle Marches in Northumberland; in 1552 he was one of the commissioners of enclosures there; in 1553 he is rated as owner of property in Lambley in Tyndale Ward; and the same year (6th of EDW. VI) he, and Albany Featherstonhaugh, are appointed by the Lord Warden, overseers of the watches, 1st at Bellistar and Milner Peth; 2nd at Cowenwoodburn and Lambley; 3rd at Purkenford and Shawbenfoot; and 4th the rest of the lordship of Knaresdale.

THOMAS WALLACE, of Lambley, living in the reigns of JAMES I and CHARLES I, purchased lands in Asholme, co. of Northumberland, 13 Dec. 1637. He is said to have been slain in the battle of Worcester, on the side of the Royalists, 3 Sept. 1651; by his wife, an heiress of the Blenkinsop family, he had three sons, of whom,

THOMAS WALLACE, of Asholme, s. his father, and added to the property the manor or lordship of East and West Coanwood, contiguous to Asholme, 3 March, 1657. By Alice his wife, a dau. of Sir Thomas Carleton, Knt., he had two sons, of whom, the elder,

ALBANY WALLACE, of Asholme, succeeded. His will, dated 17 Nov. 1677, was proved at Durham, 1678, in which will he devises "all his lands, farms, and farmholds, with woods and all privileges thereupon to his eldest son, Thomas, as his right, being his only heir." By Isabella his wife, a dau. of the family of Graham of Breckonhill Castle, co. Cumberland, he had two sons; I. THOMAS, his heir; and II. John. The elder,

THOMAS WALLACE, of Asholme, is styled in the Haltwhistle Registers "Lord of the Asholme, &c., &c." By Grace his 1st wife (who d. 1695) he had no issue; and he m. 2ndly, 17 May, 1696, Margaret, dau. of Hugh Ridley, of Plenmeller (Chief Ridley), and by her had two sons, and two daus. Lineage.—The family of Waller derives from ALURED DE WALLER, of Newark, co. Nottingham, who d. 1183, and from whom lineally descended,

DAVID DE WALLER, for thirty years master of the rolls to King Edward III. This David d. s. p. His only brother,

HENRY WALLER, of Hockerton, who m. Alicia de Mortimer, and was father of Thomas, father of John, father of

SIR RICHARD WALLER, of Speldhurst, Kent, sheriff of that county, 10th HENRY VI., and of whom we read this remarkable account in the Villare Cantium :—"He served in the wars of France under HENRY V, and signalised himself so far that he took Charles, Duke of Orleans, general of the French army, prisoner at the battle of Agincourt. He brought him to England, and as appears from a MS. at the Heralds' Office, kept him prisoner, for 24 years, at his seat, Groombridge, near Speldhurst, in Kent. He was a great benefactor to the church at Speldhurst, where his arms still remain in stonework over the porch. In them we find an addition to the former bearing of the family, assigned by King HENRY to him and his descendants, viz., a crest with the arms of France differenced by a label hanging on an oak with this motto, 'Hic fructus virtutis.'" Sir Richard m. Silvia Gulby, and had Richard, m. the dau. and heiress of Edmund Brudenbell, Esq of Buanr, Bucks, and JOHN WALLER, who m. a dau. of William Whetenhall, of Heckhurst, and dying in 1516, left a son,

Scroop. The son and heir,

EDMUND WALLER, of Hall Barn, Beaconsfield, Bucks (the celebrated poet) was b. at Coleshill, 3 March, 1505; he was educated at Eton and King's College, Cambridge; he was an M.P. at seventeen years of age, and took a considerable share during his long career in the politics of his time. His lasting fame was, however, achieved by his exquisite poetry. The Lady Dorothea Sydney, to whom he gave the fanciful name of Sacharissa, but who rejected his ardent suit, formed the graceful subject of his earlier effusions. All his productions display great elegance, taste, and ability, and hold a classic position in English literature. Waller lived latterly in retirement at his splendid seat, Hall Barn, Beaconsfield, Bucks. He d. 1687, and lies interred in the churchyard of Beaconsfield, where the fine monument to his memory, which has recently (temp. the Rev John Gould, B.D., rector of Beaconsfield) been restored by the present Mr. Waller, of Farmington, contains a remarkably beautiful Latin inscription by Rymer. Lineage.—This family of Waller, alias Warrenne, is of very great antiquity, being a branch of the Warrens of Poynton, in Cheshire. The elder branch became extinct in the male line, but its eventual heiress, FRANCES-MARIA, dau. of Admiral Sir JOHN-BORLASE WARREN, Bart. K.B. m. 1802, George-Charles, 4th LORD VERNON, who assumed the name and arms of WARREN, in lieu of his patronymic.

This house of Poynton, from which the family we now treat of springs, as shown below, in direct male line, was lineally descended from William de Warrenne, Earl of Warrenne, in Normandy, who held high command at the battle of Hastings, and was created Earl of Surrey by WILLIAM THE CONQUEROR, whose 5th dau., Gundred, he married. He was also the near relative of WILLIAM, and, according to the old Norman historians, was the lineal descendant of CHARLEMAGNE Without further entering into the details of the Warren pedigree, we find in the Book of Certificates, College of Arms, the arms of Warren of Poynton confirmed and justified to WILLIAM WARREN, alias WALLER, of Bassingbourne, co. Cambridge, and of Ashwell, Herts, who is stated in the record to be a younger branch of the family of WARREN of Poynton, under the hand of Robert Cook, the Clarenceux Roy d'Armes. It does not appear on record why he assumed the name of Waller in addition to his own patronymic, but it was probably in consequence of either of his estates above mentioned being derived from an intermarriage with an heiress of the Waller family.

WILLIAM WARREN, alias WALLER, m. Elizabeth, dau. of — Hammond, and had issue two sons, Henry, who d. without male issue; and EDWARD, who m. 1st, Margaret, dau. of Thomas Gray, by whom he had issue, I. RICHARD WARREN, alias WALLER, held a commission in CROMWELL'S army in Ireland, in 1641, and was most distinguished, as appears from the numerous and extensive grants of land he obtained in the co. of Tipperary. He discontinued the use of the name of Warren, but retained the family arms. He resided at Cully, and became possessed, by marriage, of a portion of Lord Carlingford's Tipperary property; by Dorothy, his wife, he left two sons, RICHARD and William; the elder of whom,

WATERTON OF WALTON HALL.

WATERTON, CHARLES, Esq. of Walton Hall, co. York, b. 12 June, 1782; m. 11 May, 1829, Anne, 2nd dau. of Charles Edmonstone, of Cardross Park, co. Dumbarton, 12th in male descent from Sir William Edmonstone, who m. the Princess Mary, dau. of ROBERT III, and 13th from Sir John Edmonstone, who m. the Princess Isabel, dau. of ROBERT II, of Scotland. By this lady (who d. 27 April, 1830) he has an only son,

EDMUND, b. 7 April, 1830, privy chamberlain to His Holiness PIUS IX, from whom he received the Order of Christ in 1858, J.P. and D.L. for the West Riding of Yorkshire, F.S.A., F.S.A.S., M.R.I.A., m. 20 Aug. 1862, Margaret-Alicia-Josephine, 2nd dau. of John Ennis, Esq. of Ballinahown Manor, co. Westmeath, by whom he has a son, Edmund Charles Maria-Joseph-Aloysius-Pius, b. June 10th, 1863.

Lineage.—Waterton, or Watertun, is mentioned in Doomsday Book as having a hall and a carucate of land. Together with other lands in the soke of Croule, it became, soon after the CONQUEST, the property of the Abbey of Selby, and between the years 1159—1170, when Gilbert was Abbot of that Monastery, it was called a vil, and given by him, as appears by his charter, to REINER, the son of Norman de Normanebi, he paying the yearly rent of twelve shillings on the feast of the annunciation of the Blessed Virgin Mary.

ARCHDEACON STONEHOUSE, in his History of the Isle of Axholme, gives the probable ancestry of Reiuer:—"It appears," says he, "in the survey made by the CONQUEROR, that in 1086, one Liguif held lands in Normanebi, in the North Riding; that Norman held lands in Newsam, and amongst the clamores, or claims, noticed in the same survey, it is stated that Norman de Audreci claimed three oxgangs of lands in Normanebi. These were all of Saxon descent; and there is a strong presumption to believe from the charter of Gilbert alluded to above, that Norman is descended from one of them. But between the date of Doomsday Book and the charter of Gilbert one generation must have passed away; it is therefore more than probable that Reiner, the son of Norman de Normanebi, was the grandson of the person alluded to in the survey."

REINER, the son of Norman de Normanebi, took the surname of Waterton 1159—1170; of him no other notice appears.

SIR ROBERT WATERTON was a Crusader, and at the battle of Ascalon, in 1191, is stated to have taken with his own hand three Paynim standards, for which noble deed RICHARD Cœur-de-Lion granted to him and his posterity to bear, as a charge on their shield, over all, three crescents, sa.

WILLIAM WATERTON was dead in 1255; his widow, Dyonisia, was then living, as appears from an entry on the Rotuli Finium, 39 HENRY III. He had two sons,

II. Richard, who was living in 1281, and witnessed a charter of his brother in that year, of him later.

REINER, the elder son, was Lord of Waterton, and is mentioned in the Rot. Hundred., 1275. He was m. to Elizabeth —, who survived him, and who, in a charter of 1316, is described as his relict, and the guardian of his lands. They had issue, WILLIAM; Ingelram; Agnes, m. to Symon de Kynton de Wyten, and to whom her brother William gave a piece of land and meadow, called the Morefield of Waterton, to hold as freely as his father held the same. WILLIAM, the lord of Waterton, is described in a charter dated at Waterton on the Sunday after the feast of St. Lucy, 1281, as the son and heir of Reiner Waterton, Lord of Waterton. He was m. to Joan —, who survived him, and by whom he had issue, WILLIAM; Rudolph; John; Agnes, m. to Richard de Harburg, and to whom he gave a bovate of land in Waterton.

WILLIAM, the Lord of Waterton, was returned as knight of the shire for Lincoln in 1320, and again in 1327. In 1341, a writ was issued stating that William de Waterton, and Ralph and John his brothers, had petitioned that whereas they had been for a long time abiding in the garrison of Berwick-upon-Tweed by the King's command, and that the greater part of their pay was in arrears, &c.; the receiver, therefore, of Berwick-upon-Tweed was to pay them what was due. He m. the dau. and heiress of Thomas Methley, of Methley, near Wakefield, by which marriage he obtained that lordship, and had four sons,

I. SIR JOHN WATERTON, Lord of Waterton, m. Eleanor, dau. of John, Lord Clifford. He was an esquire of the body to the Prince of Wales, and in 1401 was high sheriff of the co. Lincoln. He succeeded Sir Robert, his brother, as master of the horse to the King, for he accompanied HENRY V to the invasion of France in that capacity with a retinue of sixty persons, and was present at the battle of Agincourt, after which the king pledged him certain gold cups for the payment of his wages. He was also steward of the lordship of Kirketon Soken, co. Lincoln, and the king granted him, and heirs male, all the lands and tenements which belonged to William de Bowes within the city and suburbs of York, of the yearly value of ten marks, which had been in the possession of Ralph Delve, attainted. He also held the following offices of trust and importance: Ambassador to treat with the Duke of Burgundy upon secret affairs concerning our Lord the King, and the good of his whole realm, for which service he received as his pay £40; Commissioner to treat for a personal interview or convention between the King and John, Duke of Burgundy; and he was appointed to treat of all matters which had been declared by Herbert Van Clux, on behalf of the King of the Romans. He was one of those employed to grant letters of protection to the French ambassador coming to Calais to treat for peace. He was also comptroller to the Royal Household, during the reigns of HENRY V and HENRY VI. By his wife he had issue only one dau. and heiress, Eleanor, who m. Sir John Babthorpe, of Babthorpe.
II. SIR ROBERT, of whom presently.
III. THOMAS, who was in the retinue of HENRY V at Agincourt, with eight men-at-arms and twenty-four archers.
IV. SIR HUGH. In 1386 he gave evidence, in the Scrope and Grosvenor controversy, on behalf of Scrope. Shortly before this time he had been retained in the service of John of Gaunt, Duke of Lancaster, whose chamberlain he was, and whom he accompanied in 1392 on a journey to the Holy Sepulchre. He was knighted previously to 1388, for in October that year, by the description of Hugh Waterton, Chivaler, he was attorney for Henry, Duke of Hereford, during the Duke's absence from England. In 2 HENRY IV he was joined in commission with the Chancellor, the Bishops of Hereford and Rochester and Lord Berkeley, to examine into the matter of a complaint made to the Council concerning certain evil doers in the cos. Gloucester and Worcester, and in the Forest of Dean. On the 1st Oct. 1401, he was one of the custodes of the King's son, Thomas of Lancaster, lieut. of Ireland, then a minor, going into Ireland on the King's service. He was constable of Queenborough Castle in 1400, and in that year the manor of Milton, in Kent, was granted to him by the King. Sir Hugh was a commissioner to negociate the marriage of the Prince of Wales with the dau. of the King of Denmark, in May, 1402; and the confidence which HENRY IV placed in him was more strongly evinced in July following, when he was appointed keeper of Birkhamstead, and governor of his Majesty's two daus., Joan and Phillippa, and his cousin, the Earl of March, and his brother, who were to remain there until the King's return from Wales. In Nov. 1403, he was a commissioner to decide a question relative to the unjust detention of a hostage of the Count de Denis, late prisoner of Thomas Henley, Esq; and in 1404 was appointed a member of the King's Privy Council. Sir Hugh d. July, 1409, when an inquisition having been taken, he was returned as seised of the manor of Wrote, and two parts of the manor of Epworth, co. Lincoln; the manors of Credenhall and Eton Tregos, and the advowson of the chapel of Eton, co. Hereford, and the manor of Bremesbergh, and advowson of the church, in Gloucestershire. He left by his wife, Ellen, dau. of Robert Mowbray, two daus. and co-heiresses, Blanche, the wife of Sir Robert Challons, and Elizabeth, who m. John ap Harry, of Paston, in Herefordshire. Lady Challons was buried in the Charter House.

The 2nd son,

SIR ROBERT WATERTON, of Waterton and Methley, s. his brother Sir John in his estates, and m. Cecilia, dau. and heiress of Robert Fleming, of Woodhall, near Methley. He was also governor of Pontefract Castle when RICHARD II was confined therein. He was appointed master of the horse to HENRY IV, and was one of the commissioners appointed to receive the homage of the Duke of Gueldres, and to treat with him as to his retainer to serve the king in his wars. He was also sent by the Privy Council abroad to treat of the marriage between the eldest son of the King of the Romans and the eldest dau. of the king, and received, while so occupied, £13 4*s.* per day. Two years later, he was employed to raise men in the cos. of York and Northumberland, for the purpose of crushing the rebellion of Henry, Earl of Northumberland, and the king's writ was directed to him to arrest the person of Elizabeth, the wife of Sir Henry Percy, deceased, and to bring her to the king; and he was also empowered to settle such fines as were imposed on the persons engaged in the rebellion. In the 9th year of HENRY IV, he was commissioned to treat with the ambassadors of France as to the prolongation of a truce, and in the following year he received, as a compensation for his services, the manor of Walwick Grange, within the liberty of Tynedale, and all the lands and tenements in Fangfoss, in the co. of York, which had belonged to the Earl of Northumberland. The king also granted to him in fee the manor of Doubledyke, and the advowson of the church of Gosbarkke, and other lands in Lincolnshire, which had belonged to John Bushy, Knt., who was attainted. He was also chief steward of the Duchy of North Trent, and a commissioner of array for the West Riding of the co. of York, and served in 1434 as high sheriff for the co. of Lincoln, and in 1441 was high sheriff for Yorkshire. He was one of the executors to the last will and testament of HENRY IV. In the following reign of HENRY V, he was employed as ambassador to France; and he was one of those to whose custody the Dukes of Orleans and Bourbon were committed, when the king wrote to the bishop of Durham and the chancellor, desiring them to take safer measures for the securing of these noblemen, especially of the Duke of Orleans, hinting that Sir Robert, in whose charge the Duke of Orleans then was, might be seduced by the flatteries and promises of the duke into neglect of his duty. In consequence of this letter, the council ordered the duke to be removed to the care of Nicholas Montgomery, and the Duke of Bourbon to be placed in the charge of Sir Robert. In the 10th of HENRY V, he had the charge of the Lord de Gaucost, who had been taken prisoner at the battle of Agincourt. In the reign of HENRY VI, he was a commissioner to treat with the Scottish ambassadors concerning the release of JAMES, King of Scotland, and to settle the final peace between the two kingdoms; and as he still retained his office of constable of Pontefract Castle, the sheriff of Yorkshire was directed to deliver to him one-third of the Scottish hostages. In his collection of letters illustrative of English history, Sir Henry Ellis has published a letter of Sir Robert Waterton to the king, written from Methley; and Camden gives a description of the Hall at Methley, which was built by Sir Robert:—"The old hall at Methley was built by Sir R. Waterton originally in the reign of HENRY V. It was moated round, and had a stone bridge over the moat to a tower in the centre of the front, where was a gateway or entrance, with strong gates like a castle, and a portcullis to let down in the time of danger. At the opposite side of the house was a drawbridge over the moat. This house was built like a castle, round a square court. In the front were three towers, that in the middle, through which the grand entrance was, and another tower at each end of the front, in one of which was a ring of bells." Sir Robert appears to have been engaged in many other commissions and duties of trust, which for the sake of brevity must be passed over. At the time of his decease, he was seised of the manors of Methley, Woodhall in Methley, Barley, and Houghton, certain lands in Potterton, near Barwicke in Elmett, in the co. of York, and of other lands, manors, tenements, rents, services, hereditaments, with the appurtenances in Clareburghe, Welborne, Aunton, Scalsworth, Grinley, Walcsby, and Doughton, in the co. of Nottingham; of the manor of Doubledyke, with other lands, tenements, and services in Gosberton, Pinchbeke, Spalding, and Quadringe, in the co. of Lincoln; and other lands, tenements, rents and services in Adlingfleete, Garthope, Luddington, Amcoates, and Westwood, in the Isle of Axholme. By his lady he had one son, Robert, and one dau., Cecilia, m. to Sir Lionel Welles. Sir Robert m. Margaret, dau. of Sir Thomas Clarell, of Clarell Hall, near Tickell, who was made a lady of the Most Noble Order of the Garter in the 9th of HENRY IV. By her he had no issue, in consequence of which his large estates devolved on his sister, the Lady Welles, who had four daus and co-heiresses:—Cecilia m. Robert, Lord Willoughby d'Eresby; Margaret, m. Sir Thomas Dymoke, Knt.; Eleanor, m. — Lawrence, Esq.; Catharine, m. 1st, Sir Thomas Delaune, and 2ndly, Robert Tempest, Esq. of Bowling. The deed of partition of the estates bears date 26 April, 2 HENRY VII; and thus ended the elder branch of the Watertons, which ancient and knightly house is still represented in male line by the Watertons of Walton.

WALTON originally was included in the honour of Pontefract, which belonged to Alluric, the son of Richard Ashenhold, a noble Saxon thane, temp. ST. EDWARD THE CONFESSOR. He was s. by his son Suein, who lost his estates at the Norman CONQUEST. By WILLIAM they were assigned to Ilbert de Laci, who gave back a great part of them in fee to Suein. He had a son, Adam, who founded the monastery of Monk Bretton. Adam, the son of Suein, had two daus. and co-heiresses, between whom his large estates were divided. Amabil was m. to William de Nevill. They had a dau. and heiress, Sarra, who became the wife of Thomas de Burgh. Walton continued in the De Burgh family for eight generations, when John de Burgh had two daus. and co-heiresses, Margaret, and Jane, who became the wife of Sir William Ashenhall, of whom more anon.

Lineage.—This family represents, in the female line, the ancient and distinguished house of Vaughan of Golden Grove, which derived from

Hugh Vaughan, Esq. of Kidwelly, gentleman-usher to King Henry VII. During the great tournament held by that monarch at Richmond, in Surrey, in May, 1492, this Hugh Vaughan fought a duel with one Sir James Parker, Knt., concerning the arms which Mr. Garter had given to the said Hugh, and which the King permitted him to use, when Parker was slain accidentally, as it should appear, in the first encounter. From the following entry in a book of the household expenses of Henry VII, it appears that Hugh Vaughan was living and in his service in 1497. "It. to Hugh Vaughan for ij harpers xiij*s.* x*d.*, 2 Jan. 1497." He m. Jane, dau. of Morris ap Owen, and had one son,

Lineage.—This family is of great antiquity in the co. Salop, and has been connected by marriage with others of consideration in that shire. They acquired their present estate of Shotton in 1539, by purchase, from the family of Kynaston, but according to Gough's Memoirs of the Parish of Middle, in which it is situated, they had been located in the county as landed proprietors for some prior generations. The earliest mention made of the family is of their having acquired, at a much earlier period, the lands of Cotton, by marriage with the heiress of Howards or Howd of Cotton, and which property they retained for a length of time afterwards.

PERRY-WATLINGTON OF MOOR HALL.

Perry-Watlington, John-Watlington, Esq. of Moor Hall, co. Essex, M.P., J.P. and D.L., b. 7 Dec. 1823; m. 6 Sept. 1849, Margaret-Emily, 3rd dau. of Rev. Charles-Wickasted Ethelston, of Wicksted Hall, co. Chester, and Uplyme Rectory, co. Devon, by Ann his wife, dau. of Robert Peel, Esq. of Wallington Hall, Norfolk.

Lineage.—About the middle of the 17th century, the Perrys were settled in Devonshire, and an obscure tradition still prevails that some of them had emigrated to that country from Limerick, in Ireland. Perhaps it is owing to the circumstance of being resident in the county of Devon, that one of them, devoted his genius and skill to naval architecture, acquired a name of considerable celebrity in that science, and obtained an appointment in the King's dockyard at Plymouth. He was afterwards removed to the Royal Dockyard, at Woolwich. Here, his son, Philip, became connected in partnership with Sir Henry Johnson, then M.P. for Alborough, in Suffolk, and the opulent owner of the well-known dockyard at Blackwall. This property was, in part, purchased by

John Perry, Esq. of Walthamstow, co. Essex, who m. 1st, in 1737, Anne, dau. of Samuel Watlington, Esq. of Watlington House, Reading, co. Berks, and 2ndly, Miss Gibson, of Pinner, co. I. WILLIAM-JOHN, b. Sept. 1841
II. Andrew-Gilbert, b. 1846
I. Harriette-Elizabeth-Frances.
II Horsey-Josephine-Mary-Frances.

Lineage.—This very ancient family was originally settled in the south of Scotland, in the district of Wauchopedale, in Dumfriesshire.

The direct ancestors of the existing family were hereditary baillies in Mid-lothian, to the Keith, Marischals of Scotland, afterwards Earls Marischal, from whom they got the lands of Niddrie Marischal, and they are now by far the oldest possessors of land in the male line for a wide range round Edinburgh.

ROBERT WAUCHOPE, of Niddrie Marischal, inscribed his name upon a tomb which he built in 1387. GILBERT WAUCHOPE had a charter of Niddrie from ROBERT III; and PATRICK WAUCHOPE, of Niddrie, and Isabel his spouse, occur in a deed, 6 Nov. 1479.

From ARCHIBALD WAUCHOPE, of Niddrie, and Eupheme Scongal his wife, living 1491, the chain of evidence is complete to the present time. They had GILBERT, who succeeded; and Margaret, m. to Sir William Dundas, of Dundas. The son and heir,

GILBERT WAUCHOPE, of Niddrie, had a charter as heir apparent to Archibald, 6 Nov. 1504. He appears repeatedly as deputy to Earl Marischal, from 1527 to 1540. His wife's name is unknown, but he had a son, GILBERT his heir; and Eupheme, m. in 1529, to Sir John Edmonstone, Knt. of Edmonstone. They probably had another son, as at this time also lived Robert Wauchope, whom Bishop Lesley states, was primate of Ireland, doctor of Sorbonne, and d. at Paris, 10 Nov. 1551. The son,

GILBERT WAUCHOPE, of Niddrie, m. Alison, dau. of Hamilton of Innerwick. He d. Aug. 1571, and his relict 1589, leaving I. WILLIAM, who succeeded; II. Gilbert; III. Abraham; IV. John; V. Adam; I. Eupheme, m. to Henry Halyburton, of Merton, in 1574. The eldest son,

WILLIAM WAUCHOPE, 1560, m. 1st, Anne, dau. of Hepburn of Wauchton, by whom he had, ROBERT, his heir; and, 2ndly, Margaret, widow of Sir James Dundas, of Dundas, dau. of Sir James Sandilands, of Calder, and sister of the 1st Lord Torphichen. The son and successor,

ROBERT WAUCHOPE, of Niddrie, m. 1558, Margaret Dundas, dau. of his stepmother, by whom he had, ARCHIBALD, his heir; and Mary, m. 1583, to Gavin Sandilands, of Lundedda. He m. 2ndly, Margaret, dau. of Sir J. Douglas, of Drumlanrig, ancestor of the Dukes of Queensberry, widow of William, Earl of Menteith, and of Edward Crichton, of Sanquhar. Robert, and Archibald, the younger, of Niddrie, his son and heir apparent, were both forfeited in 1587. The said Archibald Wauchope had m. 1584, Rachel McGill, dau. of Sir James McGill Knt. of Rankeilor, and widow of George Stewart, of Kosyth. He was a papist under attainder. Henry-Hawarden Fazakerley, Esq. of Gillibrand Hall, and Fazakerley House, co. Lancaster, and sister and co-heir of the late Henry-Hawarden-Gillibrand Fazakerley, Esq., and assumed, on his marriage by royal licence the surname of FAZAKERLEY before that of WESTBY.

Lineage.—The Westbys were originally from Yorkshire, but had a settlement in Lancashire prior to the CONQUEST, and are of Saxon descent. In the general survey, the township and lands of Westby are distinctly set forth as then existing in the hundred of Amoundernes, in the north-western part of Lancashire.

The Westbys have, at various periods, held lands at Mowbreck, near Kirkham, Bourn, in Poulton, Much Urwick, in Furness, in Alston, Balderston, Thorton, Thornton Stanoe, and Great and Little Eccleston, co. Lancaster, and at Westby, near Gisbourne, in Yorkshire, but they have been deprived of the greater portion of these broad and fertile domains by religious persecutions, and for their active zeal in support of the ill-fated house of Stuart. In 1233,

GILBERT WESTBYE was sheriff of Lancashire. From him descended

JOHN WESTBYE, of Westbye, who was granted, 2 ELIZABETH, a crest, by a curious patent, which sets forth at some length the origin of armorial bearings, heralds, and officers of arms, and states that John Westbye had long been "in nobleness bearing arms." This John Westbye m. Ellyn, dau. of Kirby of Rawcliffe, co. Lancaster, and had one son and two daus. The only son,

THOMAS WESTBY, Esq., styled in the pedigree, "of Mouldbury, or Mowbreck," m. twice; 1st, Perpetua, dau. of Edward Norris, Esq. of Speke, in Lancashire; and 2ndly, Elizabeth, dau. of Thomas Preston, Esq. of Holkar. By the 1st he had, with three daus., five sons, viz., JOHN, who d. s. p.; Thomas, who d. fighting for the King (CHARLES I) without issue. Edward and William, both d. s. p.; Francis, of Myrscough. By his 2nd wife, Elizabeth, dau. of Thomas Preston, Esq. of Holkar, he had five sons and a dau. GEORGE, who founded the Rawcliffe branch; Robert, who resided at Killington, Westmoreland; Charles and Bernard, who in 1664 were serving in the life-guards; Richard, who lived at Wynter, in Lancashire; and Elizabeth. Thomas Westby (the elder), of Mowbreck, having purchased temp. CHARLES I, Rawcliffe (now White) Hall, from the Kirby family, settled that estate on his eldest son by his 2nd marriage,

GEORGE WESTBY, Esq. of Rawcliffe, major in the army, m. 1st, 1650, Margaret, dau. of Thomas Hesketh, Esq. of Mayne, Lancashire, and had one son, JOHN, his heir. He m. 2ndly, a lady named Rosamond, by whom he had issue,

WHITAKER, THE REV. CHARLES, of Symonstone Hall, co. Lancaster, b. 26 May, 1815; s. his father 17 Feb. 1843.

Lineage.—At Symonstone has long been seated a branch of the family of Whitaker, of High Whitaker, near Padiham. The name of JOHN DE WHITACRE occurs as attesting a charter relating to Symonstone, 10 EDWARD II, 1317. He had a son, ROGER, living 1326. RICHARD DE WHITACRE, probably son of Roger, granted lands in Symonstone, 7 EDWARD III, 1334. THOMAS WHITAKER, Esq., who seems to have been son of Myles, is mentioned in 1633. In 1642, he was high constable for the hundred of Blackburn. Being suspected of favouring the royalist party, he and his son, Miles, were taken prisoners, and confined in Clitheroe Castle, and the property was sequestered, but seems to have been restored in 1647. The document authorizing its restoration (until further orders) contains, among other signatures, those of Fleetwood, the parliamentary general, and Bradshaw, president of the High Court of Justice which tried King CHARLES. He was buried at Padiham, 13 Jan. 1647, leaving a son,

WHITBREAD OF SOUTHILL.

WHITBREAD, WILLIAM-HENRY, Esq. of Southill, co. Bedford, J.P. and D.L., b. 4 Jan. 1795, high sheriff in 1837, and M.P. for Bedford, in the Parliaments of 1818, 1820, 1826, 1830, 1831, and 1832 ; m. 5 Nov. 1845, Harriet, dau. of Rev. R. Sneyd, of the Isle of Wight.

Lineage.—The Whitbreads are said by family tradition, as appears by an inscription on the monument of the present Mr. Whitbread's grandfather, in Cardington Church, to have been of great antiquity in the co. of Bedford ; but their name does not occur in the list of gentry of the reign of HENRY VI, nor is there any pedigree of the family in the Heralds' Visitations. It is certain, nevertheless, that Ion House, in Gravenhurst, which, in the inscription above alluded to, is said "to have been the ancient seat of the family, was sold by William Whitbread, Gent. in 1630, as appears by the title-deeds of the present possessor." Such is the reference to the house of Whitbread to be found in LYSONS' Magna Britannia. Its extensive influence may be traced, however, to the successful exertions in business of SAMUEL WHITBREAD, Esq. M.P., the eminent brewer. This gentleman, son of Mr. Whitbread, who resided at The Barns, near Cardington, co. Bedford, and younger brother of Henry Whitbread, Esq. ancestor of the Whitbreads of Loudham Park, Suffolk, realized a very considerable fortune, and purchased large estates in Bedfordshire; among others, the manor of Cardington, where his ancestors had been settled from the year 1650, and the lands of Southill, in the hundred of Wixamtree, whereon he fixed his residence, at a splendid seat erected by Holland, in 1795. He also became proprietor of Bedwell Park, Herts, and served as high sheriff of that county, 1767. Mr. Whitbread d. 8 June, 1796. WIDDRINGTON OF NEWTON HALL AND HAUXLEY.

WIDDRINGTON, SHALLCROSS-FITZHERBERT, Esq. of Newton Hall and Hauxley, co. Northumberland, J.P., s. to the estates of his maternal uncle in 1856.

Lineage.—The Widdringtons of Hauxley are descended from the family of that name which was settled at Widdrington Castle before the Norman Conquest. As usual in those early days, the name was written in various ways: Udrington, Wodrington, Woodrington in the time of EDWARD III, and, lastly Widdrington. A great accession to the property was made about the year 1300, by marriage with a dau. of the house of Swinburne, ancestor to the Swinburnes of Capheaton, and co-heiress with her sister, who m. John de Strivelyn, ancestor of the Mydletons of Belsay Castle. Soon after this event scions from the parent stock of Widdrington began to root and thrive in different parts of the co. of Northumberland and of those adjoining it. They frequently filled the office of high sheriff and of knights of the shire, and many individuals of the family appeared in high situations as councillors and warriors of their times, and scarcely a transaction of peace or war occurs in those ages in which they are not concerned. The ballads of Chevy Chase and of the Hermit of Warkworth have transmitted their names to posterity. Among many instances of valour, wisdom, and loyalty, we notice one of a rare and exalted kind. Sir William Widdrington raised forces and fought with such distinguished bravery on the side of CHARLES I, as to receive from him a patent of nobility for his gallant conduct. He fought and fell in the battle of Wigan, in 1651, refusing to take quarter when overpowered by the Parliamentary forces. He sat in Parliament as knight of the shire, and at one time was speaker of the House of Commons.

This chivalrous attachment to the house of Stewart was inherited by his descendants, and William the 4th baron, engaged in the rising of 1715. He and two of his brothers were taken prisoners in the battle of Preston, and were accused, with six others, among whom was Lord Derwentwater, of high treason; they were found guilty and condemned. Lord Widdrington was pardoned, but the attainder of his blood and property remained.

By this rash adventure, a family which for seven centuries had flourished in affluence and power, was blasted and withered. The property was bought from the Government by C. Revel, Esq., and, through his daughter, it passed to the Warrens, and from them to Lord Vernon. The old castle, a noble specimen of border architecture, was burnt after the confiscation of the property, and the building which stands on its site is of modern construction. The last Lord Widdrington was buried at Helmsley, in Yorkshire, in the year 1741.

NATHANIEL WIDDRINGTON, the last male descendant of this family d. without issue, in 1780, having s. his brother John. He had three sisters, of whom one d. unm. Frances m. E. Browne, Esq. co. WILLIAM, of Lincoln's Inn, barrister-at-law, b. 1821, m. Rosa, dau. of W. Jones, Esq.

Lineage.—The family of Wilberforce has been established in Yorkshire from a very remote period. In the reign of HENRY II, Ilgerus de Wilberfosse served in the Scottish wars under Philip de Kyme, with a dau. of whose powerful house he had intermarried. The township of Wilberfosse, eight miles east of York, gave him a mansion and a name; and his property extended to the neighbourhood of Stamford Bridge, a spot then famous for the recent battle between Harold and Tosti, the last victory of the last Saxon monarch.

At Wilberfoss, the family was fixed for many generations, until after a gradual decline in wealth and numbers, it disappeared from the place about a century ago. About the middle of the 16th century, Thomas Wilberfoss, the son of William Wilberfoss, of Wilberfoss, by his 2nd marriage, settled in the neighbouring town of Beverley. His son appears in the Visitation of 1612, as William Wilberfoss, of Brigham; and here and at Beverley, the younger branch rose into importance as the parent stock decayed.

WILLIAMS OF ABERCAMLAIS.

Lineage.—In tracing the descent of this ancient family recourse is had, in the first instance, to the History of Brecknockshire, by MR. THEOPHILUS JONES, whose researches into the antiquities of that county its general history, and particularly the origin of the principal families resident, or who have been ancient proprietors of lands therein, were indefatigable. The first of this family of whom we have any account appears, by the author above mentioned, to have been SIR THOMAS, or, according to some, SIR RICHARD BULLEN, one of the knights of Bernard Newmarch, or Bernardus de Novo Mercatur, a Norman chieftain, who, as several Welsh pedigrees state, was uterine brother of WILLIAM THE CONQUEROR. Newmarch, allured by the success of Robert Fitzhammon, a Norman adventurer, and his accomplices, who had overrun Glamorganshire, was tempted, with a determined band of followers, to enter Brecknockshire, which he conquered from Rhys ap Tewdwr, the last of the Princes of South Wales, who exercised anything like sovereign power over the land of Brecknock.

To the knights and principal gentlemen who accompanied Newmarch in his expedition, he distributed the domain he had acquired by his conquest, agreeably to the feudal system then prevailing, reserving to himself the principal parts, with the seignory of the whole.

Amongst others, he gave to SIR THOMAS, or, as some say, SIR RICHARD DE BULLEN, or De Boulogne, the manor of Wern Fawr, a lordship in Talgarth. This Sir Thomas, or Sir Richard Bullen, or De Boulogne, and his immediate descendants, connected themselves so well in Herefordshire that they must have greatly improved their property. From one of these marriages, it is believed, sprang the Bullens of Bickling, in Norfolk; but English genealogists have been silent as to this line prior to Sir Thomas Bullen in 1411, from whom ANNA BULLEN, Queen of England, was the 4th in descent, and of whom there is a very good portrait at Penpont, she being always considered of the same family. Sir Thomas, or Sir Richard Bullen m. Alice, dau. of Walter de Bredwardine, and had issue,

SIR LAWRENCE BULLEN, who m. Blanch, dau. of Sir Robert Whitney, and had issue,

SIR THOMAS BULLEN, who m. Joice, dau. of John Britt, and was father of

WILLIAM BULLEN, who m. Ellen, dau. of John Pye, and had a son,

LAWRENCE BULLEN, who m. Margaret, dau. of Philip Vaughan, of Tyle-plas, and was father of JOHN LAWRENCE, who m. a dau. of John Gunter, and had issue, I. RICHARD; II. Philip; III. Thomas.

PHILIP AP RICHARD, who m. Jane, dau. of Lewis Havard, of Tredoman, and was father of

WILLIAM PHILIP, of Llanspyddid, who m. Gwenllian, dau. of Richard ap Iouan Meredith. Of this marriage there were issue,

I. THOMAS WILLIAMS, who follows.
II. John Williams, of Bolgoed.

THE REV. THOMAS WILLIAMS, vicar of Llanspyddid, to whom is attributed the restoration of the eldest branch of this family, and who, proud of his descent from the same ancestor as the mother of Queen ELIZABETH, as appears by an inscription upon his grave-stone, in Llanspyddid Church, exerted himself strenuously in support of the Reformed religion, and, from his having been the first who introduced the use of the surplice in the church service, was called "Vicar gwyn Llanspyddid," or the White Vicar of Llanspyddid. He was a master of arts. He m. Anne, dau. of Thomas Stoules, of Even-jobb, Radnorshire, and d. in 1613.

It may be observed that the gentry of Wales bore no hereditary surnames until the time of HENRY VIII. That monarch, who paid great attention to heraldic matters, strongly recommended the heads of Welsh families to conform to the usage long before adopted by the English, as more consistent with their rank and dignity, which may account for this Thomas having adopted the first name of his father as a surname, which has been continued by the family to the present time.

Thomas Williams, by his wife, Anne, had issue (with four daus., viz., Joan, m. to David Williams, of Myddfo; Maud, m. to Rossea Richard; Sarah, m. to Morgan William; and Lucy, m. to John Watkin), an only son,

THE REV. DANIEL WILLIAMS, vicar of Myddfo and Llanspyddid, who m. Sarah, dau. of John Lewis, of Ffrwdgrech, and had issue, WILLINGTON OF TAMWORTH.

WILLINGTON, FRANCIS, Esq. of Tamworth, co. Warwick, b. 10 April, 1800; m. 16 May, 1825, Jane-Anne, dau. of the late Henry-James Pye, Esq. of Faringdon House, Berks, formerly M.P. for that co., and poet-laureate to GEORGE III, and has issue,

II. Waldye-Henry, b. 2 April, 1831, and d. 17 Dec. 1850.
III. John-Ralph, b. 23 April, 1837.
IV. Henry-Edward, b 30 Dec. 1838.

Lineage.—JOHN DE WILLINGTON, of Willington, co Derby, lived at, or immediately after, the time of WILLIAM THE CONQUEROR, since we find that his son,

NICHOLAS DE WILLINGTON, lord of Willington, was contemporaneous with Robert, abbot of Burton, in the reign of King STEPHEN. He was s. by his son,

NICHOLAS DE WILLINGTON, lord of Willington. A dau. and heiress of Nicholas de Willington m. Hugo de Faderne, from which marriage descends Sir J.-H. Crewe, Bart. of Calk Abbey. In DUGDALE'S Monasticon, it appears that both this Nicholas and his father were liberal benefactors to the convent of Repton; and, according to Lyson, the manor and church of Willington were given to the convent by these Willingtons. His brother,

RALPH DE WILLINGTON, who served under the banner of RICHARD CŒUR DE LION, and was at the siege of Acre, settled at Sandhurst, in Gloucestershire, temp. King John, whence the manor-house obtained the name of Willington Court. He afterwards founded St. Mary's Chapel in the Abbey of St. Peter's, Gloucester, now called "The Ladye Chapel." He m. Olympias, dau. and heir of William Franc, grandson and heir of Sir Humphrey Franc, Knt., and was father of

SIR RALPH DE WILLINGTON, living 37 HENRY III, who m. Joan, dau. and heir of Sir William Champernowne, of Umberleigh, in Devon. After this marriage, their descendants, as is recorded by SIR WILLIAM POLE, in his History of Devon, left their own arms and took those of Champernowne, omitting the billets, viz., gu., a saltier, vair. Their son,

SIR RALPH DE WILLINGTON, of Willington Court, co

Gloucester, and of Umberleigh, styled by Risdon, "a worthy warrior," was governor of the castle of Exeter, 38 HENRY III, and sheriff of Devon 39th and 42nd of the same reign. He m. Juliana, supposed by Sir William Pole to be the dau. and heir of Sir Richard de Lomen, as the lands of Lomen came to their descendants. They had issue,

1. John de Willington, summoned to parliament as a baron from 3 EDWARD III to 12th of the same reign, when he d., leaving, by Joan his wife, a son,

he 3rd son,

SIR HENRY WILLINGTON, Knight-banneret, was, with his brother John, made prisoner at Bannockburn, and, subsequently, taking part with the Earl of Lancaster against the Despencers, was executed at Bristol in 1322. He m. Margaret, dau. of Sir Alexander Frevill, by Joane his wife, co-heiress of the MARMIONS of Tamworth, and left a son and successor,

SIR HENRY WILLINGTON, 23 EDWARD III. He m. Isabel, dau of Sir John Whalesborow, and had two sons,

1. SIR JOHN WILLINGTON, his heir.
II. THOMAS WILLINGTON.

Sir Henry was s. by his eldest son,

SIR JOHN WILLINGTON, of Umberleigh, who was present at the coronation of RICHARD II. He m. Matilda, dau. of Sir Walter Carminow, and had issue,

1. Ralph Willington. of Willington Court, Gloucester, who d. s. p. 10 Aug. 1382.
II. John, of Willington Court, who d. s. p. 1397.
I. ISABEL, co-heir, aged 25, 5 HENRY IV (14·4), m. William (son of Sir John) Beaumont, of Shirwell, whence descended two heiresses, from one of whom (who m. Sir John Bassett) is descended Arthur Bassett, Esq., present owner of Umberleigh, and from the other (who m. John Chichester) is descended the baronet family of Chichester and the Marquess of Donegal.
I. MARGARET, co-heir, m. John, son of Sir John Wrothe.

JOHN WILLINGTON (continuator of the male line), by Margery his wife, left a son and successor,

WILLIAM WILLINGTON, co. Gloucester, whose will is dated 22 Jan, 1500. He was father of

JOHN WILLINGTON, who had two sons, viz.,

I. WILLIAM, of Barcheston, who, though the principal property had passed to the Beaumonts and Wrothes, inherited considerable estates in the cos. of Gloucester and Warwick, including lands at Brailes, co. Warwick, where his ancestors had held lands from an early period (John Willington, the first baron, and his father, Sir Ralph, both held property there temp. HENRY III and EDWARD II). He m. Ann, dau. of Richard Littleton, Esq. of Pillaton, co. Stafford, and widow of Thomas Middlemore, Esq. of Edgbaston, by whom he had issue,

1 Margery, m. 1st, Thomas Holte, Esq. of Aston; and 2ndly, to Sir Ambrose Cave, Knt., chancellor of the duchy of Lancaster; by her 1st husband she had a son, Edward Holte, who m. Dorothy, dau. of Sir John Ferrers, of Tamworth Castle; and by Sir Ambrose Cave she had an only dau. and heiress, who, marrying Sir Henry Anolfys, had two daus. only, one of whom, Elizabeth, m. Sir Henry Willoughby, of Risley, and the other, Lettice, m. William, 4th Lord Paget, ancestor, by her, of the present Marquess of Anglesey.

II. THOMAS, of Hurley Hall.

The 2nd son,

THOMAS WILLINGTON, of Hurley Hall, 32 HENRY VIII (1541), m. Joan, only dau. of Nicolas Nithgale, Esq., and heiress of her mother, Joyce, who was sister and heiress of John Waldyvo. It appears from SIR WILLIAM DUGDALE, in his History of Warwickshire, that, after this marriage, the Willingtons, through the marriage of William Waldyve, great-grandfather of Joane, wife of Thomas Willington, with Sibilla, dau. of Simon Bracebridge, became lineally descended from King EGBERT, by the marriage of Reynburn, son of Guy, Earl of Warwick, lineal ancestor of the Bracebridges, with Leonetta, dau. of King ATHELSTAN, and hence also collaterally descended from ETHELFLEDA, who rebuilt Tamworth Castle A.D. 914, she being dau. of King ALFRED, and aunt of King ATHELSTAN, and great-granddau. of King EGBERT. Editha, also, the patron saint of Tamworth Church, was ATHELSTAN's sister. (Vide pedigrees of Willington, Bracebridge, and SAXON, Earls of Warwick—Dr. THOMAS's edition of Dugdale's Warwickshire). By this marriage, Thomas Willington had issue,

I. WALDYVE WILLINGTON, his heir.

Thomas Willington was s. by his eldest son,

WALDYVE WILLINGTON, Esq. of Hurley, who m. 1st, Joyce, dau. of George Winter, Esq. of Worthington, co. Leicester; and 2ndly, in 1563, Margery, sister and co-heir (with her sister, Jane, who m. Lionel Skipworth, Esq.) of Michael Bracebridge, Esq., and by her had, besides

Lineage.—The family of DE ANYERS, or DANYEL, whence Mr. Willis derives in lineal descent, accompanied WILLIAM THE CONQUEROR into England in 1066, and the name of its patriarch is to be found inscribed on the roll of Battle Abbey. Owing, however, to the destruction of deeds in the turbulent times of CHARLES I, the lineage can only be traced with accuracy from the year 1250.

* This Robert Lukin, Esq., was the eldest son of Robert Lukin of Wellstye, co. Essex, by his wife, Mary, dau. of Lionel Crane, Esq. The family of Lukyn is one of considerable antiquity. GEOFFREY LUKYN, of Dunmow, co. Essex, had a grant of lands in Dunmow, &c. from HENRY VIII (see MORANT'S Essex), and was the 3rd son of Richard Luckyn, of Chigual, co. Essex. From the said Geoffrey, Vice-Admiral Windham descended, and from Geoffrey's eldest brother derives the Earl of Scarsdale.

SMIJTH-WINDHAM OF WAGHEN.

WINDHAM, WILLIAM-GEORGE, Esq. of Waghen Hall, co. York, D.L., b. 26 April, 1828; s. his father 1848.

Lineage.—The family of WINDHAM, or WYNDHAM, appears at an early period to have been settled in Norfolk. About the commencement of STEPHEN's reign, ALWARD DE WYMONDHAM, a Norman gentleman, with his four sons, witnessed the charter of Wymondham Priory, near Crowthorpe, their earliest abode on record, whence they derived their surname. In the reigns of HENRY III and EDWARD I, THOMAS and WILLIAM DE WYMONDHAM respectively held offices of trust under the crown. Their lineal descendant, SIR JOHN WYNDHAM, engrafted the royal blood of EDWARD I, PHILIP THE BOLD ("Le Temeraire") into the family, by his marriage with Margaret Howard, dau. of John, 1st Duke of Norfolk, who fell at Bosworth. The same Sir John was beheaded in 1502, by HENRY VII, for his attachment to the house of York. From him descended

SIR WILLIAM WYNDHAM, whom CHARLES II rewarded with a baronetcy; while another branch, settled at Keyntaford, was represented, temp. CHARLES I, by

SIR EDMUND WYNDHAM, who is stated to have taken the field with two regiments of horse and one of foot raised at his own expense, at the sacrifice of his Dorsetshire manors and other estates, sold to the amount of £1,000 per annum. After making a free donation to CHARLES of £20,000, he raised for the royal service £60,000 on his own credit. His eldest son fell at Edgehill. The 2nd d. unm. His 3rd,

THOMAS WYNDHAM was page to CHARLES II, and his only son accompanied JAMES II in his exile, as page of honour, to Italy, where he died. Thus ends the history of a line who lost all but honour by their hereditary loyalty to the rightful possessors of the throne.

To return to the other branch:—From the above-mentioned SIR JOHN WYNDHAM, executed by HENRY VII, was descended

SIR EDMUND WYNDHAM, of Felbrigg, temp. JAMES I, who, being condemned to lose his right hand for striking a Mr. Cleer in the Royal Tennis Court, prayed to lose his left instead and keep his right, "for therewith," said he, "I may do ye king gode service." Upon this submission and request, a pardon was granted him. From him was descended

THOMAS WINDHAM, of Felbrigg, who in the unsettled orthography of those days appears to have written the name Windham vice Wyndham, and from him descended

ANNE WINDHAM, of Waghen, and other estates, dau. and eventual heir of JOHN WINDHAM, Esq. of Waghen, co. York, by Mary his wife, dau. and heir of Joseph-Ash Windham, Esq. (which John Windham, of Waghen, was son of William Windham, Esq. of Ersham, and nephew of Ash-Windham, Esq of Felbrigg, M.P., the grandfather of the Right Hon. WILLIAM WINDHAM). This heiress of Windham of Waghen, m. 1779, SIR WILLIAM SMYTH, Bart. of Hill Hall, and Horham, Essex, and left (with two daus.) four sons, the only survivor of whom

JOSEPH SMIJTH-WINDHAM, Esq. of Waghen, co. York, D.L., b. 19 May, 1792; m. in Aug. 1824, Katherine, dau. of J. Trotter, Esq. of Dyrham Park, Herts, and had issue,

V. Stuart, b. 16 May, 1834.

Lineage.—"Wingfield," saith ANSTIS, in his elaborate register of the Order of the Garter, "is a manor with an half ruinated castle in Suffolk, which, as Mr. CAMDEN writes, gave both a name and a seat to a large family in those parts famous for their knighthood and ancient nobility; but though, in all probability, the name might be originally taken from thence, yet till some further discoveries be made, it may be doubted whether it was the seat of this family before the time of Sir John Wingfield, since the patronage and advowson of that place was in Sir Richard Brews, in 1302, 1323, and 1329." There are pedigrees of the Wingfields which give them possession of the Castle of Wingfield in the time of the CONQUEROR. The present head of the house is VISCOUNT POWERSCOURT. In 1650, Dr. Winter was obliged to resign the living of Cottingham, in Yorkshire, of which he was rector, being ordered by the then government to proceed to Ireland, with the commissioners appointed for the settlement of that country, as their chaplain, and was soon after constituted provost of Trin. In this office he exerted himself with great zeal and success, to re-assemble the surviving members, and re-establish the discipline of the University. He appears to have been removed from the provostship at the Restoration. Dr. Winter acquired property in the King's co., Meath, and Westmeath, and dying in 1666, was s. by his eldest son,

III. Alexina-Josephine-Arbuthnot.

Lineage.—It appears, by a considerable number of very ancient deeds, that this family flourished before and in the reign of Edward III, at Wollaston, in Staffordshire; that it took the name from that place; that Henry, John, and William de Wollaston, were at that time lords of that manor. In Richard II's reign they parted with the said manor to the Aston family, and then dispersed into other parts of that co. Some went to Trescot, and some to Perton, in the parish of Tettenhall, Staffordshire, of which last the present family of Shenton, in Leicestershire, is descended. The Wollastons were gentlemen, always living on their estates, seemingly with the same disposition and character as at present; contented and without ambition so as to make much noise in the world, or to much enlarge their fortunes, until, in the beginning of Queen Elizabeth's reign, one of the younger sons of the family at Perton was sent up to London, and there, by assiduity, and living to the age of 93, he became very rich.

Thomas Wollaston, of Perton, in Staffordshire, a person of rank and influence in the reign of Henry VII, had a grant from the Crown of the office of keeper of the outwoods of Lyndridge, which he held until 1523. His great grandson,

Henry Wollaston, alderman of London (2nd son of Henry Wollaston, Esq. of Perton, and brother of Edward Wollaston, who m. Elizabeth Wollaston, of Trescott Grange, his cousin, and had two sons, Sir John Wollaston, lord mayor of London; and Henry, ancestor of the Wollastons of Loseby Extinct Baronets), d. 1617, having obtained a grant in the preceding year of the family arms. He m. Sarah, dau. of William Burgess, of Kippington, Kent, and had by her, with four daus., two sons, I. William, his heir; and II. Thomas, of Abbot's Langley, Herts, and afterwards of Oncott, co. Stafford, one of the filazers of Yorkshire, b. in 1587. He left by Sabina his 2nd wife, dau. of Sir George Oldrich, a son, William, of Coton, Clanford, who m. Elizabeth Downs, and by her left at his decease, 10 March, 1691-2, with other issue, a son, William, of whom presently. The eldest son,

William Wollaston, Esq., b. 1580, of Oncott Hall, Staffordshire, and afterwards of Shenton, Leicestershire, was high sheriff of the latter co. in 1629, and of the former the next year. He m. twice, but had issue only by his 2nd wife, Anne, dau. of Humphrey Whitgreave, of Bridgeford, Staffordshire, viz., four sons. Mr. Wollaston d. 10 Dec. 1666, and was s. by his only surviving son,

William Wollaston, Esq. of Shenton, D.L., high sheriff 1672-3. He m. Elizabeth, dau. and sole heir of Capt. Francis Cave, of Ingersby, by Rebecca his wife, dau. of Robert Roper, Esq. of Heanor, co. Lineage.—The family of Wolrich, or Woolrych, took its rise in the co. of Chester, where Wulfric, its founder, was living in the time of Edward the Confessor. The estate of Dudmaston, where the family were seated in co. Salop, was acquired by William Wolryche, Esq. of Wenlock, by his marriage with Mary, dau. and heir of Hugh de Dudmaston, of Dudmaston, co. Salop. About the end of Queen Mary's reign, or beginning of that of Elizabeth, a member of the Shropshire family separated from the parent stem and settled in Herefordshire. This second stock continued there located for a great number of years, and it is believed that its descendants are still extant in that co. The ancient chapel at Dynmore, now in ruins, affords ample proof of the antiquity of the Woolryches, and the old chapel at Quatt, near which Dudmaston is situated, has many splendid monuments which bear testimony to the high consideration of the name.

Of Edward Wolrych, Esq. of Dynmore, co Hereford, the 3rd son of Humphry Wolryche, Esq. of Dudmaston, co. Salop, by Ellen his wife, dau. of Sir Hugh Pershall, the descendant and representative was

WYSE OF THE MANOR OF ST. JOHN.

WYSE, NAPOLEON-ALFRED-BONAPARTE, Esq. of the Manor of St. John, co. Waterford, a Knight of the Order of St. Maurice and Lazarus, J.P., s. his father in 1862.

Lineage.—The ancestor of this ancient house was a younger son of the Wyses, originally of Greston, in Cornwall (1167), and subsequently of Sydenham, in Devon (1320). He accompanied Richard, Earl of Pembroke, into Ireland, in the year 1171, with the rank and title of knight, and immediately after the earl's landing and taking possession of the co. Waterford (one of the first conquests of the English), was rewarded with large possessions (part of which, near Dungarvan, still held by the family, retains the name of "Wyse's Point," as marked in the oldest sea charts), in capite, at two knights' fee, and the usual condition of military service. The confirmations, grants of priviieges, &c., from King JOHN, HENRY III, EDWARD I, EDWARD III, RICHARD II, HENRY VII, HENRY VIII, ELIZABETH, CHARLES I, and CHARLES II, are still in the possession of the family. King JOHN, when he visited Waterford, as Earl of Moreton, resided in this neighbourhood; and subsequently, in 1195, granted a charter to the Priory, now Manor of St. John, afterwards confirmed by EDWARD I, in 1281, by which it was exempted from all tolls, and other similar charges, with power to hold a court for the trial of minor offences within its jurisdiction, whilst right to all tithes, great and small, was granted by Walter, bishop of Waterford, and confirmed by his successors. From the year 1452 to 1690, when the city surrendered to King WILLIAM, there were (besides several members of Parliament) thirty-six mayors and high sheriffs of this family. The mayor, THOMAS WYSE, on signing the capitulation of the city, as governor, to WILLIAM (1690), paid the sum out of his private purse (£1,500) required by the King, to save the citizens from an immediate levy, which sum was never repaid to him. The Wyses were amongst the heaviest sufferers by confiscation. In the year 1647 the entire of their property was seized and possessed by the usurping powers, and it was not until the year 1663, after the restoration of CHARLES II., that they were restored to its enjoyment by a decree of the Court of Chancery, with large deductions, however, such as Chapelizod, in the county of Dublin, one hundred houses within the city of Waterford, retained by CROMWELL'S soldiers, or those who purchased from them, &c. &c.

The chief line of the English Wises were those seated at Sydenham, in Devon—for details of whom refer to WISE of Totness. A junior branch, as already mentioned, was established in the sister kingdom so far back as the twelfth century, by

SIR ANDREW WYSE, Knt., who passed over to Ireland with the first band of warriors that, under the command of Strongbow, sought a settlement in that country. He had issue, WILLIAM and Robert. The former,

WILLIAM WYSE s. his father, and was progenitor of the Wyses of whom we are about to treat. His descendants, as well as those of his brother Robert, soon extended their name and possessions in the county of Waterford, as is most strongly testified by a deed of feoffment bearing date at the close of the reign of EDWARD II, A.D. 1325. The estates, which were the subject of this family conveyance, were, it appears, held by the tenure of finding an armed man for the defence of the city of Waterford, as was proved, on record, upon the occasion of the death of John, son of Philip Wyse, when William Wyse, succeeding to the estates, was sued in the Exchequer for relief that was customarily due to the Crown out of such property, when he pleaded that he was not bound to render any relief, inasmuch as the lands, to which it was sought to attach the duty, were held by the service of an armed man, as aforesaid, and that same being a corporal service, was not subject to the payment of reliefs (Roll in Chief Remembrancer's Office, 4 RICHARD II, A.D. 1381).

ANDREW WYSE, the son of William, was father of

PHILIP WYSE, mentioned in the deed of feoffment to which we have just alluded. He had two sons, WILLIAM and John. The elder,

WILLIAM WYSE, had, by the aforesaid feoffment, temp. EDWARD II, a confirmation of certain lands in the co. of Waterford. His son and successor was

WILLIAM WYSE, who m. a dau. of the Aylward family, and was father of

PHILIP WYSE, whose son,

JOHN WYSE, m. a dau. of the Madans (one among the first alliances of the English gentry with the native Irish), and left a son and successor,

WILLIAM WYSE, who was father of four sons, George, Walter, RICHARD, and Galfrid. The 3rd son,

SIR RICHARD WYSE, was father of Andrew and JAMES. The latter,

JAMES WYSE, m. into the distinguished family of the Waddings (from whom was the celebrated Franciscan monk, Luke Wadding, an eminent writer of the 17th century), and was father of

JOHN WYSE, whose son,

MAURICE WYSE, was Mayor of Waterford 1452, and was living A.D. 1495, in which year the Wyses are recognized in connection with that manor of which they have ever since continued to be the lords: Maurice Wyse had held a lease of certain lands belonging to the Priory, which he obtained from the prior, John Devereux, in that year, in fee or otherwise, even, that is, by the same tenure, and in as ample a manner as they were held by the prior himself. In four years afterwards, John Wyse and James Sherlock were appointed justices to hold assizes in the adjacent districts. (Patent Roll, 14 HENRY IV, in Chancery, Ireland). This

JOHN WYSE, of the Manor of St. John, the son of Maurice, inherited, by descent, those lands of Island-i-Kane, Ballydermody, &c., which had been the subject of the family settlement of 1325 amongst the Wyses. In 1533,

WILLIAM WYSE, son of John, by his wife, a dau. of Henry Sherlock, Esq. being then mayor of Waterford, wrote to Cromwell, the King's secretary, an official letter on the state of Ireland, which is preserved in the British Museum, in which he alleges certain correspondences between the Emperor CHARLES V and the Earl of Desmond, the object of which he infers was an "invasion of the cities and towns by the sea-coast of this land." It is to be here observed, that during his mayoralty occurred the memorable Geraldine rebellion, when Waterford under his government and control, adhered so firmly to HENRY VIII, that the loyalty of its citizens was acknowledged by three royal letters of thanks; and Wyse himself, having gone to England in 1536, was made esquire of the King's body, and subsequently received the honour of knighthood, as "an honourable gift for their renowned fidelity," and returned to Waterford with a cap of maintenance and gilt sword, presented by the king to the corporation, to be borne thence-forth before its mayor on all state occasions, which practice is still continued. Sir William d. about the year 1536, leaving issue, when various inquisitions post mortem were taken to ascertain his estates and possessions in the co. and city of Dublin, the cos. of Cork and Tipperary, and, above all, in the co. and city of Waterford.

HENRY WYSE, of the Manor of St. John, the eldest son of Sir William, m. to Joan Clarke (of Bristol), d. circa 1564. It is also recorded that this Henry Wyse had an exemption to him and his heirs from all tolls and grist at Watkins's mill, on the remarkable condition of defending the granter's title and enjoyment of the watercourse "from St. Catherine's to Ship's, or Sheep's, Bridge, according to the charter of King JOHN to the house of St. John." This Henry died without issue, leaving

JAMES WYSE, the son of his next brother John, by Maryanne Walshe, of co. Dublin, his heir, to whom in such character, Queen ELIZABETH granted by patent, in the fifteenth year of her reign, A.D. 1573, all and singular the manors, lordships, castles, &c., of which his said uncle died seised. This James, who m. Alisonne, of the family of Chief Baron PINGLASS, author of the Breviate of Ireland, dau. and heir of Finglass, co. Dublin, d. 1590, leaving issue, I. JOHN; II. Andrew; III. Henry; IV. Thomas, mayor; and V. Nicholas, sheriff of Waterford, 1605. The 2nd son, Andrew, appears to have been Knight of Malta, Prior of England, Privy Councillor to King PHILIP of Spain, in the kingdom of Naples; &c. Henry, the 3rd son, was of Monkstown, co. Cork, followed Lord Baltimore to America; was the founder of a family in Virginia, now represented by the celebrated Confederate orator and statesman, Major-Gen. HENRY WISE, &c. His eldest son,

JOHN WYSE, Esq. of the Manor of St. John, aged 24 at his father's death in 1596; m. Mary, dau. of Bartholemew Lincolne, a lineal descendant of William Lincolne, mayor of Waterford, 1397, whose portrait, curiously painted on vellum, is preserved in the town hall, at Waterford, where he was sheriff, 1627, and of Elizabeth Comerford, by whom he had issue. He d. 1625, and left an elder son,

ROBERT WYSE, Esq., mayor of Waterford, 1630, m. Mary Wadding, but d. 1632, without issue. He made a settlement of the family estates in 1631. His brother,

FRANCIS WYSE, Esq. of the Manor of St. John, m. to Genette, dau. of Robert Walsh, mayor of Waterford, 1602, was his heir-at-law. By his will of 1647, he left very large bequests to the charitable institutions of Waterford, and five shillings to each of its citizens. His heir-male,

THOMAS WYSE, oldest son of Andrew, sheriff of Waterford, 1632, 3rd son of John, m. the only child and heiress of Thomas Symnell, Esq. of Cuddagh, Queen's co., and was s. by his nephew,

ROBERT WYSE, who m. Anstace Le Poer, of Gulcah, co. Waterford, and had (with a dau., Zaveria, wife of Edward Fitzgerald, Esq., ancestor of Purcell Fitzgerald, of The Island) several sons, among whom,

The family got through the troubles of the Commonwealth by espousing the cause of the Protector, who appears to have been personally acquainted with the William Yaldwyn of that day, whom he made commissioner for the co. YALE OF PLAS-YN-YALE.

Yale, William-Parry, Esq. of Plas-yn-Yale, co. Denbigh, lieut.-col. in the army, m. Eliza-Flora, dau. of John Saunderson, Esq. This gentleman, the 4th son of Thomas-Parry Jones-Parry, Esq. of Llwynon, succeeding under the limitations in the will of Miss Yale, of Plas-yn-Yale, representative of the ancient house of Yale, to the estate of Plas-yn-Yale, substituted by that lady's testamentary direction the name and arms of Yale for those of Jones-Parry. Col. Yale is in the commission of the peace, and a D.L. for Denbighshire, and has served the office of high sheriff for that county.

Lineage.—The Yales of Plas-yn-Yale, a branch of the Welsh Geraldines, are cadets of the Merionethshire house of Corsygedol, derived, with the Wynns of Glynn, and Wynnes of Peniarth, from Osborn or Osber Wyddel, a scion of the great line of Desmond, who emigrated to the Northern Principality about the middle of the 13th century. David Yale, Esq. who d. 26 Jan. 1690, æt. 45; and II. Thomas Yale, Gent. who d. 12 Oct. 1697, æt. 37. This branch of the line, was s. at Plas Gronwy, by ELIHU YALE, whose father THOMAS YALE, Esq., "a pilgrim father," one of the first settlers of Newhaven, in Connecticut, America, where he proceeded in 1638, is stated to have descended from an ancient family which possessed Plas Gronwy (history of Yale College, Newhaven, sm. 4to. 1766). The son of Thomas Yale, viz.,

ELIHU YALE, Esq. of Plas Gronwy, high sheriff of Denbighshire in 1704, was b. at Newhaven, Connecticut, 5 April, 1648; came to England æt. 10, and went to India æt. 36, where he lived 20 years, succeeding Mr. Giffard as president of Fort St. George in 1686-7, and succeeded in 1691-2 by Mr. Higginson. While governor, and, as Pennant observes, most probably, a very arbitrary one, he hanged his groom for riding out with his horse, for two or three days to take the air without his leave. He was a benefactor to Newhaven College, Connecticut, on which in commemoration of his generosity, the trustees, 12 Sept. 1718, conferred the name of "Yale College," and the College obtained from his family from England in 1790, his portrait, which was placed in the library. He bestowed on the church of Wrexham the altar-piece with the picture of the Institution of the Sacrament, which he brought from Italy,—also the picture of King David. A merchant of enterprise, he realised great wealth, and it is stated that, he "brought such quantities of goods from India, that finding no one house large enough to stow them in, he had a public sale of the surplus, and that was the first auction in England." The original diamond ring of Mary, Queen of Scots, upon which are engraved the arms of England, Scotland, and Ireland, quartered, and which was produced in evidence at the Queen's trial as a proof of her pretension to the crown of England, given by CHARLES I. on the scaffold to Arebbishop Juxon for CHARLES II, and by the latter pawned in Holland, was bought there by Governor Yale, and sold at his sale for £320, for, it was supposed the Pretender. Governor Yale d. in London on the 8th, and was buried in Wrexham churchyard, on the 22nd July, 1721, under a monument, restored some years ago and again requiring repair, with an inscription commencing with these lines,

In Africa travell'd, and in Asia wed,
Where long he liv'd and thriv'd; at London dead."

Lineage.—This family is of considerable antiquity in the counties of Argyle and Dumbarton. They have held their property of Darleith in the latter county for nearly two centuries. The first of whom there is any record was Thomas Zuill, who appears as a subscribing witness to the convention entered into betwixt General Monck, commander-in-chief of the forces in Scotland, on behalf of his Highness the Lord Protector of England, and the Earl of Lothian and others, on behalf of Archibald, Lord Lorne and his party, for the capitulation and disarming of the latter, dated 17 May, 1655.

John Zuil, the son of this Thomas, acquired by purchase the lands of Darleith from a family of that name. He was one of the Commissioners of Estates for Dumbartonshire to the Scottish Parliament in 1678, as appears by the Acts of that year, and he suffered severely during the religious persecutions of the time, having been not only amerced in a fine of £1000 sterling, but was also confined for some years a prisoner in the castle of Dumbarton, from the effects of which confinement he died in 1688: he is mentioned in the contemporaneous histories as "one whom even the enemies of the Covenant have not charged with any offence more grievous than that of worshipping God according to the dictates of his conscience." CECILIA-GERTRUDE.

Lineage.—WILLIAM FITZADELM DE BURGO, the first of the name who came to Ireland, succeeded Strongbow as chief governor of that country in 1177, in which year he founded the abbey of St. Thomas à Beckett in Dublin, and in 1200 that of Athassel, co. Tipperary, where he he was interred, as was also William de Burgo, Lord of Clanricard, A.D. 1248. His descendants held a conspicuous place in Irish history. They were Earls of Ulster and Lords of Connaught, of part of Munster, and of the manor of Trim, and others in Leinster (these titles became merged in the royal title through the marriage of Elizabeth de Burg with Lionel, Duke of Clarence). They filled many of the highest offices —six of them having been chief governors, and two lords-treasurers of Ireland—and were not less eminent in the Church, one having been archbishop of Tuam, five bishops, and four superiors of religious houses and provincials of orders. They were equally distinguished for fidelity to the cause of their country, and adherence to the royal house during the troubles of the 17th century.

A hundred and fifty years later ten members of this family (six being of the Mayo line) were cols. of regts. or leaders of independent troops or companies in the service of King JAMES II, and others, fifteen of whom were included in the subsequent outlawries taken at Strude, co. Mayo, crowded the muster roll of commissioned officers in twenty-six of that king's Irish regiments. One was governor of Athlone; another of Galway, and a third, William Bourke, cousin of Lieut-Col. Walter Bourke, of Carrowkeel, was ordered by King JAMES to defend the Castle of Grange, co. Sligo, when being vigorously besieged, and, disappointed of promised succours, he blew up the castle at the moment the besiegers were about to enter the breach, and, with many of his enemies, was buried in the ruins.

WILLIAM-FITZADELM was ancestor of the Earl of Mayo, of Sir Richard de Burgo, of Castleconnell, co. Limerick, of Lord Downes, of the Marquess of Clanricarde, and of others among the nobility, as well as of many whose titles are extinct.

SIR EDMOND-ALBANAGH, fourth in descent from William Fitzadelm, and great grandson of Richard de Burgo, Lord of Connaught and Trim, who d. in 1243, was ancestor of the Mayo Bourkes, and, by the law of tanistry, became elective head of that family, with the title of Lord Mac William Bourke, five years after the murder of his kinsman, William de Burgo, the Brown Earl of Ulster, by Sir John Mandeville, in 1333. Sir Edmond died, "well stricken in years," in 1375, leaving one son, by Sabina, dau. of Dermott O'Malley, of the Owles (the Baronies of Muirick and Burrishoole, co. Mayo), ancestor of Gronualie (Grisclda O'Malley), who m. Ricard-an-Icran Bourke (Iron Dick), and was mother of the first Viscount Bourke, of Mayo.

Mayo, and of those of Nowtown and Thomastown, co. Tipperary, now extinct. He founded the cell of Armagh (for the abbey of Cong).

V. Richard, of Turlough, co. Mayo, s. his brother Thomas in the Mac Williamship in 1460, and d. nine years after (having previously resigned his lordship). He was ancestor of the Bourkes of Turlough. Thomas Bourke of this family, was M.P. for Mayo co. in 1639, and Sir William was included in the royal declaration of thanks, as for services beyond sea. In 1689, Walter Bourke, of Turlough, was M.P. for Mayo co., and colonel of a regiment in the service of King JAMES. Two of his brothers were in the same service. Theobald as colonel, and Thomas, who was M.P. for Castlebar, as captain. Colonel Walter Bourke and Captain Thomas Bourke were included in the royal commission of the 10th of March, 1690. After the treaty of Limerick, the former retired to France with his regiment, called the regiment of Athlone. He was greatly distinguished in subsequent campaigns, and d. a field-marshal in 1715. At the siege of Cremona, which he defended against Prince Eugene in 1702, his regiment, and that of Henry Dillon, repulsed the Austrians who had surprised the sleeping garrison.

V. Richard, of Ballintober, co. Mayo, founded the abbey of Burrishoole, in that co., in 1486. He was ancestor of the family of Ballintober, one of whom, Thomas Bourke was a captain in the service of JAMES II. A family descended from this branch is settled in L'Orient, Low Brittany.

He aided the Earl of Kildare at the sanguinary battle of Knocktuagh, in 1504, mainly contributing to the victory, and d. the year after, leaving "many sons, whose issue are all extinct, but those of his son Oliver." The abbey of Teach Saxon is supposed to have been founded by this John Bourke.

Lineage.—This family is of very considerable antiquity, having a common ancestry with the Boyds, Earls of Kilmarnock, the last of whom bearing the title suffered on Tower Hill, in 1745, for his devotion to the ill-fated race of Stuart. The first recorded ancestor, SIMON, brother of Walter, high steward of Scotland, witnessed the foundation charter of the monastery of Paisley, in 1160, and is therein designated "frater Walteri filii dapferi." He was father of ROBERT, called BOYT or BOYD, from his complexion (the Celtic word Boidh signifying fair), and from him derived the various families of the name. The lands of Kilmarnock were granted by ROBERT THE BRUCE to his gallant adherent,

SIR ROBERT BOYD, who had been among the first associates of the prince in his arduous attempt to restore the liberties of Scotland. Sir Robert was father of three sons, SIR THOMAS, his heir; Alan, who commanded the Scottish archers at the siege of Perth, in 1339, where he was slain; and James. The eldest son,

SIR THOMAS BOYD, was taken prisoner, together with KING DAVID II, at the battle of Durham, in 1346. His son and successor,

SIR THOMAS BOYD, of Kilmarnock, m. Alice, dau. and co-heir of Hugh Gifford, of Yester, and had a son and heir,

He also obtained lands in Lanarkshire, which descended in lineal succession to his representative,

THE REV. WILLIAM BOYD, D.D. of Merton Hall, co. Wigton, by whom they were sold in 1780. Dr. Boyd m. Joanna, dau. of the Rev. James Maitland, a younger son of Pitdrichie and Banchory, co. Aberdeen, an ancient branch of the house of Lauderdale, and had two sons, EDWARD, his heir, and William, who d. in America, in 1814, leaving a son, Maitland-Wilson. The elder son,

The full particulars of his fate were elucidated on the spot by Capt. H.-M. > Confess his might, and love to call him lord."

Lineage.—This is one of the few families still extant of undoubted Saxon origin, and according to BLOMEFIELD (History of Norfolk), and others, it can be traced back long prior to the CONQUEST.

The etymology of the word is the Saxon cheorl, or ceorl, meaning husbandman, and ton, a town, whence the first founder of the family took his name; but in Domesday Book it appears to have been spelt Carletune and Cherletone, from which latter the Charlton family is derived. According to BLOMEFIELD, there existed in Norfolk, at the CONFESSOR'S survey, a Carleton Hall manor, which belonged to Hakene, and also a Carleton Manor, which belonged to Ketel the Dane. The descendants of the latter took their name from it, and held tenure from the CONQUEROR, on condition of presenting the king yearly with twenty-four herring pies. At Dugdale's visitation of Cumberland, in 1665, Sir William Carleton, of Carleton Hall, near Penrith, certified his descent, eighteen generations in all, from Baldwyn de Carleton, who flourished shortly after the CONQUEST, and "from that family (as SANDFORD says in his Cumberland MSS., deposited at the Chapter House, Carlisle) all the famous Carletons of England are descended." The representative of the above line is the present Lord Dorchester, whose ancestor Lancelot, of Brampton Foot, settled at Dromfall, in Ireland, temp. CHARLES I. From the same family also sprang Guy, Bishop of Bristol, 1671, and of Chichester, 1678, whose line is represented by the Carletons of Guisons Farley, Sussex. A branch appears to have settled in Lincolnshire, where we find Adam de Carleton, living temp. EDWARD I, and also in Nottinghamshire, where Thomas de Carleton held Whitehall, 10 EDWARD II, from John de Londham. Adam de Carleton was the ancestor of the celebrated statesman and ambassador, Baron Carleton, of Imbercourt, Viscount Dorchester (1628), from whose nephew, Sir John Carleton, of Brightwell, Oxon, the present Miss Lowndes-Stone, of Brightwell Park, is lineally descended. Some other of his descendants settled in Surrey and Middlesex, and from them derived Francis Carleton, who settled in Ireland circa 1650, and was the ancestor of the present Francis Carleton, Esq. of Clare.

FRANCIS CARLETON, Esq., removed to Ireland, temp. CHARLES I, and together with Thomas Hunt, Esq., had a grant of lands in Beladare, Skahanagh, and Moyclare, barony Garrycastle, and Lehensie and Kilmucklin, barony Kilcoursie, all in King's co., and another grant in Tewistowne, barony Kells, co. Kilkenny (Public Records of Ireland, p. 196, and Carleton Pedigree, Heralds' College). He was s. by his son,

RICHARD CARLETON, of Knocknaming, alias Darlinghill, near Clonmel, Tipperary. He m. circa 1665, Elinor, youngest dau. of Capt. Francis Drew, of Kilwinny, co. Waterford. This lady was a lineal descendant of King JOHN, Llewellyn, Prince of Wales, and Dermot Mac Murrough, King of Leinster (vide Drew Pedigree, BURKE'S Royal Families and their Descendants). Richard Carleton d. 1682, and was s. by his son,

He purchased Butler's land (new Clare), in 1705, from the Hollow Sword-Blade Company, and also obtained the forfeited estate, Bardenshill, in Tipperary (Public Records of Ireland, p. 359). Lineage.—This is a family of ancient Scottish extraction. One branch of the original family continued to reside in Ayrshire, and held the lands of Muirton, in Beith parish. Another resided in England, and had the arms worn by the Lisburn family recorded in the Heralds' Office more than 300 years ago; and we find them in the early part of the 17th century in connection with the Seymour family, for on the 8 Sept. 1614, when Sir William Wade was lieut. of the Tower, a letter, now on record in the State Paper Office, was written by the Privy Council, to the Rev. Dr. Fulton, requiring him to visit the Lady Arabella Stuart, then a prisoner in the Tower, for having married Mr. Seymour, afterwards 1st Marquess of Hertford (see LADY THERESA LEWIS's life of this Lord Hertford, in her Clarendon Gallery). From this Dr. Fulton, who was of man's estate in 1614, descended,

THE REV. ROBERT FULTON, of Guanabo, Island of Jamaica, who m. and had two sons,

I. RICHARD, his heir.
II. Thomas, b. 1696, M.A., Christ Church, Oxford, 21 March, 1718; is believed to have d. s. p.

GILLETT FAMILY.

This family, originally from Gilleste, a village in Savoy, was seated at Frysley and Hall-End, hamlets of Polesworth, Warwickshire, in the early part of the 14th century. Thence they moved to Seal, Leicestershire, and JOHN GILLETT, of Seal, m. Alice, dau. and co-heiress of John Jermyn, of Cossington, in that co. (a relative of John Jermyn, high sheriff of Norfolk in 1450, and both of them strong supporters of the Mowbrays, Dukes of Norfolk, as, indeed, the Jermyns had been for generations, Ingram Jermyn having been pardoned in 1321 [15 EDWARD II] for treasons committed, with Sir John Mowbray, in the "pursuit" of the De Spensers, the unhappy favourites of that monarch).

Isabella, the other dau. of John Jermyn, of Cossington, m. Alexander Blythe, of Long Stratton, Norfolk, and her dau., Alice, m. John Gresham, Esq. of Holt, and was grandmother of Sir Thomas, the Founder of the Royal Exchange.

These Norfolk alliances led to the two younger sons of John Gillett, of Seal, settling on the Duke of Norfolk's estates at Bradfield, Norfolk, and Yoxford, Suffolk, in both of which places John Jermyn, of Cossington, had property in right of his wife.

The [illegible] branch assumed the name of Candler, and became [illegible] in the direct line in 1852.

WILLIAM GILLETT, of Bradfield, in 1563, proved his right to the family arms at the Heralds' Visitation. His descendant, JOHN GILLETT, purchased the Hall estate at Halvergate, co. Norfolk, in 1705. His great-grandson, the late CYRUS GILLETT, Esq. of Halvergate Hall, m. Sarah, dau. and heiress of Robert Howard, Esq. of Beighton, and dying in 1848, left the following family,

I. ROBERT (present representative of the family), of Halvergate Hall, co. Norfolk, m. Harriet, dau. and co-heiress of Robert Howard, Esq.
II. DANIEL, M.A. of Beighton, in holy orders, rector of Geldeston, m. Mary-Ann, the other dau. and co-heiress of Robert Howard, Esq.
III. CYRUS, of Postwick Hall, Norfolk.
IV. Edward, M.A. of Shipmeadow, Suffolk, in holy orders, vicar of Runham, Norfolk, m. Ellen-Elizabeth, dau. of Capt. George-Edward Francis, of Martham Grange, Norfolk, late of the 77th regt. of foot, and of the East Norfolk militia.
V. Henry, capt. East Kent Militia, m. Sarah-Maria, dau. of W.-J. Lysley, Esq., M.P.
VI. Thomas.
I. Sarah.
II. Emma, m. Henry Blake, Esq.
III. Louisa, m. Rev. George-H. Cooke, M.A., incumbent of St. Matthew's, Thorpe, Norwich.

The Gilletts of Seal became extinct in the male line in two generations, and their property passed, by the marriage of Agnes Gillett, the sole heiress, to the family of Hollyns of Moseley, and from them to the Gresleys (barts.), the present possessors.

Another branch of the Gilletts were influential inhabitants of the borough of Leicester, where one of them was mayor in 1417, and made an enactment to prevent affrays by disarming the inhabitants (Vide ROBERT'S Social History of the Southern Counties, page 410).

This branch of the family, after strongly supporting HENRY VII in his claim to the throne, and furnishing several mayors to Leicester, became extinct about 1640.

Lineage.—It suffices to commence with FERGUS I (Righ Alabinn), King of Scotland, whose descendant (being 12th in descent), Rath, A.D. 1123, had a son, Gillean-na-Tuolch, or Gillean of the Battle Axe. He fought at the battle of Largs, under King ALEXANDER III, and d. before 1300. In his honour his descendants have since borne as crest, a Lochaber axe, erect, between cypress and laurel, with a motto, "Altera merces," referring to those emblems as resolutely indicating the alternative of death or victory as the only termination of battle recognised by the family which he founded in the person of his son, GILLISE, who assumed the name of MACGILLEAN, written by some of his descendants Maclean, by others as it is pronounced, Maclaine. This Gillise fought under Bruce at Bannockburn. His great-grandson, Lachlan Maclean, surnamed Lubaneach, or "The Politic" (whose war-song is to be found translated from the Gaelic in the poems of SIR WALTER SCOTT), m. the Lady Elizabeth, dau. of John, Lord of the Isles, by his wife, the Princess Margaret, 4th dau., by his 1st wife, Elizabeth, dau. of Sir Adam Mure, of Rowallan, co. Ayr, of King ROBERT II, grandson and representative of ROBERT BRUCE, and first sovereign of the House of Stuart. The hand of the Lady Elizabeth was won by violent wooing, characteristic of that age. John, Lord of the Isles, being captive to Lachlan Maclean, his feudal subject, obtained his freedom by conceding to Maclean the position of hereditary judge of the Council in peace, and lieut.-gen. of the army of the Isles in war, with the privilege of being on the right hand of all the clans in battle. This concession ratified by the gift of his dau. to Lachlan in marriage. Lachlan's son, Eachuiun Ruadh na'n Cath, or Red Hector of the Battles, commanding a squadron on the coast of Ireland, worsted the English fleet, and laid under contribution the city of Dublin, and, after many successes, d. in single combat with Sir Alexander Irvine, of Drum, his adversary being slain also by him, at the decisive battle of Harlaw, 1411, in which battle he held command as hereditary lieut.-gen. of the army of the Isles. His body was carried from the field by the clans Innes and MacMhilmorie on their shields, and buried by them at I Collumkill. To cancel enmity between the families of Drum and Maclean on account of this mutual slaughter, it was agreed that every successor of each family should exchange swords, which was done for many generations. His son, Lachland, surnamed Bronich, or "The Burly," had by his 1st wife, who was dau. to the Earl of Douglas, a son, Lachlan Oig, or the younger, from whom is descended Maclean, Lord of Duart and of Morvern, now represented by Col. Sir Charles-Fitzroy Maclean, Bart., and which Lachlan Oig's eldest son, Hector, was slain at Flodden Field. Lachlan Bronich had by his 2nd wife, Finovola, dau. of William Macleod, of Harris, a son, John, surnamed Garve, from his gigantic stature and strength, of Breck-Achadh Castle, in the Island of Coll, where he founded the family known as Maclean of Coll; another son of Lachlan Bronich, Donald, being the founder of the family of Maclean of Ardgour; this Donald's 2nd son, Neil Bane, founded the family of Maclean of Borreray, and his 3rd son, John Ruadh founded the family of Maclean of Treshnish.

JOHN GARVE (8th in descent from Gillean-na-Tuolch), m. Isobella dau. of Fraser of Lovat, the predecessor of Lord Lovat, and was s. by his son, John Abrach, who m. Jannette, dau. of Maclean of Urquhart. His elder son, John, dying unm., his 2nd son, HECTOR, s. to the Coll estates, and m. Meve, dau. of Allister Mac Ian Chatanaich, of Islay, and had a son, Hecter-Roy, who m. Marion, dau. of Hector Oig, chief of Maclean. He was s. by his son, LACHLAN, 6th Maclean of Coll, who m. Florence, dau. of Norman Macleod, of Macleod, and gave to his 2nd son, Hector, the Isle of Monk, granted by charter from the Bishop of the Isles, where Hector founded the family of Maclean of Isle of Monk. He was a good soldier, and distinguished under Sir Lachlan Maclean at the battle of Kilsyth. He was slain in a night attack by the Maclans: he m. Julian, dau. of Allan Maclean, of Ardtornish, and was s. by his son, HECTOR, who m. Catherine, dau. of Hector Roy, laird of Coll. His son, LACHLAN, m. Mary, dau. of James Macdonald, of Bellfinlay, and their son, DONALD, m. Florence, dau. of the Rev. Archibald Maclean, minister of Ross-in-Mull. Their eldest son, LIEUT.-COL. LACHLAN MACLEAN, having served in the American war, d. D.L. of the Tower of London; their 2nd son, CAPT. JOHN MACLEAN, served abroad in the royals, and afterwards in the Argyle fencibles; he m. Isabella, dau. of John Maclean, eldest son of Donald of Kilmalouaig, in Tyrie, of the family of Maclean of Borreray, by his wife, Isobelle, sister of Donald Campbell, of Dunstaffnage Castle. (John Maclean, of Kilmalonaig, father of Isabella, was m. to Florence Maclean, of Inversedell, Florence Maclean's mother, Mary Maclean, of Ardgour, being granddau. of the celebrated chief, Sir Ewen Cameron, of Lochiel, and he was guardian and manager of the person and estates of his young kinsman, the late Col. Maclean, 13th chief of Ardgour, being surnamed, after the manner of the Gael, Factor More, or the Chief Manager.) Capt. John Maclean and his wife, Isabella, had issue,
